28. Get some art on your walls

Have you got some bare walls in your home that need covering up? Or perhaps you're tired of the tattered Pulp Fiction poster? Sure, it saw you through college, but now it seems a bit blasé, doesn't it? Head to one of these London art fairs for some inspiration, and to pick up some new pieces!

 London Original Print Fair (March 21 – 24): Somerset House – London's longest-running art fair has something for everyone, with works spanning five centuries of art history. Prints include those from the world's greatest masters all the way up to the latest pieces by rising talent.

 The Other Art Fair (March 7 – 10): The Truman Brewery – *affordable art and unforgettable experiences are at the root of The Other Art Fair, where guests can browse works from predominantly independent artists. March's iteration celebrates International Women's Day with a 69% female-identifying line-up, female-focused features and events, and an art fair debut from the Eat London Strippers Collective.
