

Your March Agenda

It's March! Spring is finally here! At last we can all put away the Big Coat, check the weather, then immediately get it out again – and wear it on the way to one of the many amazing events the city has lined up for us this month...

They include a high-energy rock band who only do covers of ABBA songs; a pair of fantastic art fairs (one of which is actually affordable!); an improvised theatre show that goes on for fifty hours non-stop; The Nudge's own debut mini festival; a chance to quite literally throw shades at people; an all-new book festival (making it, ahem, a novel experience); a ludicrously ambitious immersive restaurant featuring indoor hot air balloons; plus a popup slinging – get this – burnt Basque cheesecake milkshakes spiked with rum. And that's just for starters...

London Original Print Fair | Get some fresh prints

Looking for some fresh prints? Then head to Somerset House and check out the London original print Fair. If you can believe it, it's the longest running art fair in London, now celebrating its 39th edition. You'll get to see (and possibly buy) prints by everyone from Rembrandt & Picasso to David Hockney & Grayson Perry.

Details: 21st – 24th March | Somerset House, The Strand, WC2R 1LA | £18
