Time Out says

The world's longest-running art fair comes to Somerset House for its 39th edition. Wend your way from stall to stall to see what the exhibitors have to offer from rare prints by Old Masters, themed exhibits and newly published print works. With prices ranging from a few hundred into the thousands, this favourite among collectors is also a good place for any novice looking to start buying art. Special exhibits this year include a tribute to British Pop Art pioneer Joe Tilson and a curated display by Norman Ackroyd, one of the UK's most distinguished artist-printmakers.
